I.   Introduction

What will be the accomplishment of this work? A cohesive set of ideas that blends perspectives and promotes further blending. What am I trying to do with this? I'm hoping to put it out into the world. I'm hoping it can help solve some problems. Why are you writing this? Because there are problems that need to be solved.

Like what? War, ideology, polarization, injustice, misinformation, poverty, inequality–just to name a few. I'm sure there are more. Some problems are effects of some other problems–rooted in other problems. Why do these problems need to be solved? Humanity may depend on it. How could you be sure of that? Look around, the realities carved in lies.

It's not that deep. It is.

Why is this going to be different from anything else similar in nature? Because this isn't about prescribing another set of values to replace the pre-existing ones that are similar in nature. This is about providing a framework to derive values yourself. Why should I listen to you? The same reason you should listen to anyone: to get their perspective. And maybe once you've heard me out you can take what's useful to you and make it your own. Why wouldn't I just listen to anyone else and do the same, then?

II.   God

$$\forall x \in God, \exists \text{something to come}$$

"For all x in God, there exists an element tbd"
